Practice Summary

James is ranked in Chambers and Partners and Legal 500 most recent directory guides as a leading junior in public procurement law.

He joined Landmark Chambers from Allen & Overy, where he spent five years focussing on commercial judicial review, planning and environmental, procurement litigation and international arbitration, particularly in the renewable energy, regulated utilities and infrastructure sectors.

Prior to joining the Bar, James worked in the House of Lords in the Opposition Whips Office as the lead researcher in constitutional and legal affairs, working with the Shadow Front Bench and Shadow Lord Chancellor. He also served with the Coldstream Guards on a number of operational tours, during which time he trained and qualified for the Bar.

Planning

Ranked in the Directories as a leading junior, James is described by Legal 500 as “great to work with and a systematic thinker” (Legal 500, 2023).

He appears regularly in the Planning Court, at public inquiries and local plan examinations on behalf of developers, local planning authorities, major utilities companies, public interest and campaign groups and private parties in planning and environmental matters. He also regularly acts in commercial disputes in the Technology and Construction Court in relation to development projects.

His practice covers all areas of planning and environmental law, with particular specialisms in residential development, employment and office development, waste, Green Belt, leisure and recreational development, Habitats and EIA, ecology, heritage, flood risk, CIL and section 106 agreements.

He has acted and continued to act and advise local authorities in relation to the preparation and promotion of their local plans, including acting for the South Downs National Park Authority in their successful promotion of their local plan.

Recent case highlights include:

- Acting for a local authority in relation to a major regional recreational and tourism facility in the south of England (the Bournemouth artificial surf lagoon inquiry) in a local inquiry
- Acting for a developer in the successful allocation of a mixed-use scheme in Islington as part of the Islington local plan
- Appearing in the Court of Appeal in a contractual dispute concerning an overage clause as part of a development agreement
- Acting for a group of Parish Councils in successfully objecting to a major storage and freight facility in the East of England
- Successfully representing a group of objectors to a garden village proposal in the Green Belt in Kent.
- Successfully defending a multi-million pound commercial claim in the Technology and Construction Court against a local authority in relation to the residential development of the Old Sarum Airfield.

Before joining Landmark, James was part of the Global Environment Team at Allen & Overy LLP where he worked on various contentious planning and environmental matters in relation to a number of major national infrastructure projects.

Infrastructure

James' major projects work has included:

- Bristol Port Company. Junior counsel for BPC in their successful promotion of the Bristol Deep Sea Container Terminal project, consent for which was granted in February 2010.
- British Airports Authority. Junior counsel to BAA on the Heathrow Airtrack Project, a £500m scheme to provide direct rail access from London Waterloo to Heathrow Airport.
- London Underground Limited Victoria Station Upgrade. Junior counsel for London Underground Limited in the successful promotion of the £750m Victoria Station Upgrade project, consent for which was granted in 2010 following a public inquiry.
- Royal Mail Group. Advisory work regarding an extensive planning audit of the Post Office property portfolio.

- Central Bedfordshire Council. Advice in relation to sustainability appraisal and the draft Luton and South Bedfordshire Core Strategy.
- Cambridgeshire County Council. Represented Cambridgeshire County Council in its objection to the A14 motorway upgrade scheme from Huntingdon to Cambridge.

Environment

Some of James' specific areas of expertise in the field of planning and environmental include:

- Waste, pollution and statutory nuisance. He has experience in waste and pollution matters, including private actions for nuisance and negligence in relation to contaminated land. He has regularly appeared for both local authorities and corporate defendants in relation to noise abatement notices, appeals and prosecutions. Clients for whom he has worked in relation to contaminated land and pollution (including remediation notice issues) have included corporate and public sector clients including Tesco Stores Limited, Southern Water, and Thames Water.
- European environmental legislation. James has particular expertise regarding the respective assessment regimes required under the Habitats, EIA and SEA Directives. He has advised both large scale developers and third party objectors in relation to compliance issues arising from European environmental issues. He has specific expertise in relation to mitigation licences required under the Conservation of Habitats and Species Regulations. He has also advised in relation to professional negligence issues arising from an environmental consultancy and mitigation work.

Environment

James' expertise in the environment is closely linked to his Planning Law practice.

Some of his specific areas of expertise in the field of planning and environmental include:

- Waste, pollution and statutory nuisance. He has experience in waste and pollution matters, including private actions for nuisance and negligence in relation to contaminated land. He has regularly appeared for both local authorities and corporate defendants in relation to noise abatement notices, appeals and prosecutions. Clients for whom he has worked in relation to contaminated land and pollution (including remediation notice issues) have included corporate and public sector clients including Tesco Stores Limited, Southern Water, and Thames Water.
- European environmental legislation. James has particular expertise regarding the respective assessment regimes required under the Habitats, EIA and SEA Directives. He has advised both large scale developers and third party objectors in relation to compliance issues arising from European environmental issues. He has specific expertise in relation to mitigation licences required under the Conservation of Habitats and Species Regulations. He has also advised in relation to professional negligence issues arising from an environmental consultancy and mitigation work.

James has extensive experience of acting for and advising claimants, including significant commercial clients, and defendants in judicial and statutory review claims in the higher courts, both as junior and sole counsel. Significant environmental public law cases that he has been involved in include:
