Clause 84

“38ZAMeaning of “national development management policy”

What are national development management policies? (2) 「Landmark Chambers」

At the time that the Bill was published the Government published a policy paper
Levelling Up and Regeneration: Further Information

Most fundamentally, we will need to identify and consult on the National Development Management Policies which will sit alongside plans to guide decision-making. They will be derived from the policies set out currently in the National Planning Policy Framework, where these are intended to guide decision-making, but we will also identify and seek views on any gaps in the issues which are covered. The rest of the National Planning Policy Framework will be re-focused on setting out the principles to be taken into account in plan-making, whilst also streamlining national policy, making it more accessible and user friendly.

What difference will the changes make? (1)

- National development management policies will be 'derived' from policies on decision making in the NPPF.
- NDMP will no longer be an 'other material consideration'- they are to be given equivalent status to the development plan under the current system.
- In the event of conflict NDMP will prevail.
- A proposal which conflicts with the development plan and any NDMP will only be granted consent if material considerations strongly indicate that a decision should be made otherwise than in accordance with the NDMP and the development plan.

What difference will the changes make? (2)

- In the initial operation of the system (before development plans have been prepared under the new arrangements) there is likely to be much debate on whether the development plan conflicts with NDMP.
- Those proposing development are likely to argue that proposals comply with the NDMP, and are not likely to rely on other material considerations outweighing the indication given by the development plan and NDMP.
- This is a change from a local plan led system to a NDMP led system.
